Karen: What is the little camera thing by your name -- does that mean you're on Skype?
me: it means that I've downloaded the google video application so I can chat via video now Karen: Who are you chatting with via video?
me: no one yet, really
me: Mirna was doing it with her friends
me: figured it might be useful to do little conferences with people Karen: Yeah, I'm NEVER gonna do it. You've seen me in work mode. Right now I have rollers in my hair, sitting in my underwear.
Karen: That's the fun of being online -- you don't have to have your makeup on.
Karen: To me.
me: I'm not exactly Captain Dapper when I wake up either me: not planning on ruining the sloppiness opportunities of the internet except when necessary Karen: Yeah.
Karen: Send me your skeptic piece when you get it finished? Can't figure out what'
Karen: s blocking you.
me: it's an unusually difficult piece that requires me to refute the assertions of Harvard neuroscientists
me: but I'm almost done now
Karen: OK, send it along when you're done.
Karen: You did get the groceries yesterday?
me: yep indeed, thanks
